

Civilizations may emerge fresh and vanish. Remains may be found later on but not finish. Excavations may shed some light on glorious past. There may be some reasons for its extinctions very fast. How does nation emerge with historical traditions? Deep rooted love for holy land without condition. Every citizen ready to shed blood for its pride and honor. All to defend irrespective of old or young major or minor. Nation may remain within secured boundaries. It may have all the prosperity with big industries. Peace and stability may still elude the nation. Other neighbors may not like to have good relations. How can sentiments and attachments remain intact without identity? Stable nation with strong defense is all call of the day and necessity. Nation can only prosper and rise with strong and resolute action. We the people of nation has every right to defend without any reaction. Can any nation prosper without popular support? Is it not essential to live as one nation with good rapport? Does then any nation may you look towards you for any weak spot? I think they will refrain from any mad misadventure and dare not. It will be great shame if we have to live under constant fear. It will be living death if constantly agony and pain we have to bear. Nation will pass through identity crisis and suffer with humiliation. To live under shame may add insult and find no reconciliation. It is right said "don't ask what country is doing for you" But ask "what you are doing for the country" It has deep meaning in it and quiet sensible thought behind. Any nation can't afford to go without it and reasonably find. No nation can advance and have identity of its own. If it has no clear policy and stand clearly known. At least people of other nations may look toward with a respect. They will think twice before and enter into pact. Ancient civilizations were knows for its tolerance. "Live and let others live" was slogan free from any interference. This always formed corner stone of policy. Liberty and freedom were not the words from mighty. Liberal thoughts must prevail and message should go across. Let there be the free world with liberty thoughts and no threats to pose. No intimidation of any sort with mutual territorial integrity in tact. Let there be free flow of people to uphold the humanity in fact.
